

6 Addison's Walk: this historic avenue of yew trees are the oldest plants in the gardens.

This Yellow tour is an easy-going walk around some of the garden's historic highlights.

Explore more!

For more information about the gardens, other tours, events and activities, visit www.botanicgardens.ie

Practicalities

The tour starts inside the main entrance gate. Follow the Yellow signs, and when you see the numbered audio sign, play the corresponding audio track. The gardens are open daily, 9am-5pm weekdays, 10am-6pm at weekends March to October, and till 4.30pm in Winter. T +353 1 857 0909

Download the free audio tour to your MP3 player from our websites. For the app version, simply point your phone here, or to your app store.

Android users

Acknowledgements

Written and narrated

Matthew Jebb, director, National Botanic Gardens; Mary Mulvihill, Ingenious Ireland

Music

'The Last Rose of Summer', Aoife O'Sullivan (soprano), Mairead Hurley (piano)

Sound production

Twintrack Media

Design

Carton LeVert

© National Botanic Gardens and Ingenious Ireland/Mary Mulvihill 2010.

Funded by

Department of Tourism, Culture and Sport under the Cultural Technology Grant Scheme, 2010.

Yellow Tour Contents

Allow about an hour for the tour

- 0 Welcome
- 1 The Gardens at Glasnevin
- 2 A Georgian Home
- 3 Thomas Moore's Rose
- 4 The Last Rose of Summer (song)
- 5 An Architectural Treasure
- 6 Addison's Walk
- 7 The Dinosaur Tree
- 8 The Arboretum
- 9 A Room Full of Plants
- 10 Two Famous Irish Botanists

Other Tours

The Green tour explores the famous glasshouses for fascinating stories about exotic plants, while the Red tour takes you to the river for some wildlife and philosophy.